The immediate cause was a hemorrhage at the base of the skull.

O'Brien's dying statement that he had been assaulted in Kinney's saloon at No. 211 North Ninth street, is similar to statements made by him before he went to the Latthernn Hospital, where he died.

About 12 o'clock Thursday night O'Brien was in Brown's saloon, at the corner of Seventh and Pine streets Itis lip was cut, and while he seemed to have been drinking, he was not drunk. Mr. Cooper said that in the conversation O'Brien said that Tom Jenkins had hit him on the Jaw. The cause of the assault had been a remark of O'Brien's concerning Harry Hawes.

On Saturday, while at his home, No. 2006 Gamble street, O'Brien complained of having a toothache. He did not say anything about having been assaulted. He left the house about 4 p. m. and appeared at the Lutheran Hesmital about 6:50 p. m. Chief of Police Desmond declares that the case will be slifted to the bottom, and that everyone implicated will be arrested, whatever position they may occupy.

The witnesses subppenaed for the Coroner's inquest to-day are Thomas E, Kinney, John A. Sheridan. Thomas M. Jenkins, Detectives Cordell and Keely, Doctor Bernays, Miss Louise Krauss, superintendent of the Lutheran Hosoltai, and Joseph F. O'Brien, a brother of the dead man.

Snow in Iowa and Northern Illinois, showers at scattered points over the Ohio Valley and the lower lake region, and various areas of cloudiness over the Central States, was enough to puzzle the wisest weather forecaster, and E. H. Bowie summed it up by predicting showers and variable winds for this vicinity to-day, Even Mr. Bowle confesses that he is tired of the delayed spring, and says that the best he can do is to keep the tem-perature on the fifteenth floor of the Chemical building at summer heat, in hopes of forcing the season. The temperature has fallen in the South and nearly all sections west of the Missouri and Mississippi rivers.

Probate Judge Crews yesterday over ruled a motion to require Mrs. Vivian ruled a motion to require Mrs. Vivian Ciyde Bevis to include in the inventory of the estate of her husband, the late Alfred Bevis, an insurance policy of $19,000 on his life.

The policy was originally made payable to his estate, but he assigned it to his wife, who, with G. Lacy Crawford, was named as executor of his estate.

Florence E. Longstroth and Lida B. Roth, daughters of Bevis by a former marriage, claimed that the assignment, which was not written on the policy, but on a separate piece of paper, was not sufficient, and that the insurance should go to their father's heirs.

Judgo Grews held that the assignment was sufficient and that if it was not he had no jurisdiction to do as asked.
